ABOUT MICHAEL PHILLIPS

In 1970, while students at Humboldt State University, Mike and Judy Phillips began what would become the One Way Book Shop as a small informal source of Christian books and materials for their fellow students. Over the next three decades God blessed those small beginnings and the bookstore became a thriving part of the Humboldt County Christian community for 35 years.

Mike's first published books in the late 1970's were all non-fiction and covered a variety of topics. In the early 1980's his longtime dream to renew the popularity of Scottish writer George MacDonald began in earnest. Mike edited some of MacDonald's lengthy novels heavy with Scottish brogue. He and Judy then made the original works of MacDonald available through their own small family-run publishing company, Sunrise Books.

This led to the writing of his own fiction, at first with Mike and Judy's longtime friend Judith Pella. Phillips and Pella eventually collaborated on several major fiction series, all of which appeared on the CBA national bestseller list.

Through the years as the ministry of Mike's writing has expanded, God has continued to guide him in the production of books emphasizing characters with strong spiritual values. In addition to being available in Christian bookstores all across the country, Mike's books have been offered through several book clubs, been translated into a number of foreign languages and have been published in over 200 editions in all.

In 2004, after 35 years, Mike and Judy were forced to close their beloved One Way Book Shop, though they continue to maintain Sunrise Books for sale of his own and MacDonald's books. In that year the periodical Leben was also inaugurated, dedicated to the vision and legacy of George MacDonald. In 2005 Mike's 100th published work was released.

It has always been Mike's desire in his writing that through his characters and stories those who read his books will find a closer and more intimate walk with God, and that they will be challenged to think about their faith in fresh and deeper ways. Both he and Judy enjoy responses from readers and find great encouragement from the letters they receive.
